

Core Content for Social Studies Assessment

The goal of social studies education is to help students become contributing, participating, and knowledgeable citizens. To achieve this goal, students must know, understand, and apply the content and concepts of the various sub-disciplines of social studies (government and civics, history, geography, economics, culture and society).

Kentucky's Core Content for Assessment is a companion document to the Program of Studies for Kentucky's Schools. Kentucky's Program of Studies outlines the curriculum for social studies at each grade level. Kentucky's Core Content for Social Studies Assessment is an assessment document.

The charts of content on the following pages are organized into five areas based on the seven Academic Expectations for social studies. The areas are:

ACADEMIC EXPECTATIONS		STRAND	STRAND NUMBER
2.14 Democratic Principles	2.15 Political Systems	Government and Civics	1
2.16 Social Systems	2.17 Cultural Diversity	Culture and Society	2
2.18 Economics		Economics	3
2.19 Geography		Geography	4
2.20 Historical Perspective		Historical Perspective	5

Each of the five areas is further organized around three to four assertions or broad content statements. The same assertions are used across the grade level clusters (elementary--assessment at grade 5, middle level--assessment at grade 8, and high school--assessment at grade 11). Bullets under each assertion then highlight the grade level differences. The bullets are usually aligned across grade level clusters to show the spiraling curriculum of social studies where a concept is introduced in elementary school and further developed in middle and high school. Some bullets contain additional information in parentheses. As teachers use the Core Content for Social Studies Assessment to make curricular decisions, they need to incorporate all five strands of the social studies.

Within the document, each Core Content statement is coded. The fact that the statement is part of the Core Content for Social Studies Assessment is indicated by a SS. E, M, and H (elementary, middle and high) indicate the grade level by which Kentucky students should know this content for assessment. The numbers in the code indicate the strand of social studies and its relationship to the assertions within a strand. For example, the first bullet of the first strand under the first assertion is numbered 1.1.1.

Government and Civics

The study of government and civics allows students to understand the nature of government and the unique characteristics of American democracy including its fundamental principles, structure, and role of citizens.

Academic Expectation 2.14: Students should understand the democratic principles of justice, equality, responsibility and freedom and apply them to real-life situations.

Academic Expectation 2.15: Students can accurately describe various forms of government and analyze issues that relate to the rights and responsibilities of citizens in a democracy.

Culture and Society

Culture is the way of life shared by a group of people, including their ideas and traditions. In America’s multicultural society, students need to understand that culture influences viewpoints, social rules, and social institutions.

Academic Expectation 2.16: Students observe, analyze, and interpret human behaviors, social groupings, and institutions to better understand people and the relationships among individuals and among groups.

Academic Expectation 2.17: Students interact effectively and work cooperatively with the many diverse ethnic and cultural groups of our nation and world.

Economics

Economics includes the study of production, distribution, and consumption of goods and services. Students need to understand how their economic decisions affect them, others, and the nation as a whole.

To deal with the problem of scarcity, people and societies create economic systems and institutions.
SS-E-3.2.1 Economic systems can be large (e.g., U.S. economy) or small (e.g., individuals and households). SS-E-3.2.2 The U.S. economic system has financial institutions (e.g., banks). SS-E-3.2.3 The U.S. economic system is based on free enterprise where businesses seek to make profits by producing or selling goods or services. SS-E-3.2.4 Profit is the difference between revenues and the costs entailed in producing or selling goods or services.	SS-M-3.2.1 Economic systems include traditional, command, or market. Modern economies use a “mixed system” that has features of all three. SS-M-3.2.2 The hope of earning profit motivates businesses to take the risks involved in producing goods and services.	SS-H-3.2.1 Economic systems can be evaluated by their abilities to achieve broad social goals such as freedom, efficiency, equity, security, and growth. SS-H-3.2.2 Economic institutions include such organizations as corporations, labor unions, banks, stock markets, cooperatives, and partnerships. SS-H-3.2.3 Individuals attempt to maximize their profits based on their role in the economy (e.g., producers try to maximize profit, workers try to maximize income, savers and investors try to maximize return).
Markets are institutional arrangements that enable buyers and sellers to exchange goods and services.
SS-E-3.3.1 A market exists whenever buyers and sellers exchange goods and services. Prices and availability of goods and services are determined by supply and demand. SS-E-3.3.2 The direct exchange of goods and services is called barter. Money has generally replaced barter as a more efficient system for exchange.	SS-M-3.3.1 Prices of goods and services are determined by supply and demand. The market price is reached when quantity supplied equals quantity demanded. SS-M-3.3.2 Money (unit of account) can be used to express the market value of goods and services. Money makes it easier to trade, borrow, invest, and save. SS-M-3.3.3 Competition among buyers and sellers impacts the price of goods and services.	SS-H-3.3.1 Numerous factors influence the supply and demand for products (e.g., supply - technology, cost of inputs, number of sellers; demand - income, price of similar products, consumers’ preferences). SS-H-3.3.2 Specific financial and non-financial incentives often influence individuals differently (e.g., discounts, sales promotions, trends, personal convictions). SS-H-3.3.3 The level of competition in a market is largely determined by the number of buyers and sellers.

SS-E-3.4.1 Producers create goods and services; consumers make economic choices about which ones to purchase. SS-E-3.4.2 The government provides goods and services (e.g., police force, fire fighting, education, food surpluses) and pays for them with taxes. Private businesses offer similar goods and services (e.g., security guards, private schools, grocery stores) for profit. SS-E-3.4.3 Producers who specialize create specific goods or services (e.g., computer games, tennis shoes, movie theatres).	SS-M-3.4.1 The basic economic issues addressed by producers are production, distribution, and consumption of goods and services. SS-M-3.4.2 Productivity can be improved by specialization, new knowledge, and technology/tools. SS-M-3.4.3 Personal, national, and international economic activities are interdependent.	SS-H-3.4.1 An entrepreneur is a person who organizes and manages a business and/or enterprise usually with considerable initiative and risk. SS-H-3.4.2 Technological change and investments in capital goods and human capital/resources increase productivity. SS-H-3.4.3 Investments in capital goods and labor can increase productivity but have significant opportunity costs. SS-H-3.4.4 The interdependence of personal, national, and international economic activity often results in international issues and concerns (e.g., natural resource dependencies, economic sanctions, environmental and humanitarian issues).

Geography

Geography is the study of people, places, and environments. Students need geographic knowledge to understand the world and their relationship to it. A geographic perspective also enables students to better understand the past and present and to prepare for the future.

Academic Expectation 2.19: Students recognize and understand the relationship between people and geography and apply their knowledge in real-life situations.

History is the interpretation of events, people, ideas, and their interaction over time. In order for students to understand the present and make plans for their future, they must understand the past.
